Corporate Social Responsibility

Deutsche Bank acts to enable communities and economies to prosper. In India, the bank applies its global corporate social responsibility (CSR) strategy to the most relevant local concerns through the pillars of Born to Be, Made for Good and In the Community. The bank works with like-minded partners to achieve common goals for the betterment of society and people. Employees too play an active part in transforming communities, through the Plus You programme.

In 2020, the bank's CSR programme in India supported 355,000 beneficiaries (including 200,000 for Covid-19 relief) through numerous projects under its various pillars;

Born to Be

Over 45,000 children and youth received access to quality education, nutritious meals, and timely corrective healthcare needs.

In the Community

Over 310,000 people received access to clean drinking water, watershed management, and access to primary healthcare.

Made for Good

The bank supported over 200 women in social entrepreneurial ventures and helped non-profits scale up.

Plus You

One in four employees – over 3,200 - devoted a total of 16,000 hours, which is equivalent to 2,000 work days. Employees also contributed INR 7,000,000 to charities.

Art

The Bank is also a committed supporter of the arts, culture and heritage. The Deutsche Bank collection, considered to be the world's largest corporate art collection, includes 60,000 works on paper, mainly drawings, photographs and prints that can be seen in our offices around the globe. From this, over 250 Indian and international masterpieces of modernist art are on view at Deutsche Bank's offices in Mumbai. The Indian part of the collection represents activity from major art centres throughout the country, with a good deal of emphasis on young and emerging talent. Deutsche Bank has also led a heritage conservation project for the restoration and maintenance of the erstwhile Tata Palace in Mumbai which now serve as the Bank's office.
